Unamuno y Jugo, Miguel de. Papers, 1912-1913.
Salamanca, Spain

Miguel de Unamuno y Jugo (1864-1936), Spanish author and scholar, spent most of his life in Salamanca where he taught at the university. He was rector of the university from 1901 to 1914, the period from which the three letters in this collection date. In 1912-1913 he wrote these letters to Benjamin Burges Moore* (1878-1934), author in 1915 of From Moscow to the Persian Gulf, Being the Journals of a Disenchanted Traveller in Turkestan and Persia.

On May 14, 1912, Unamuno made an appointment

Unamuno y Jugo, Miguel de 2
for Moore to visit him at his home in Salamanca.

On January 7, 1913, Unamuno elaborated upon his conception of God, discussed his work on Del sentimiento trágica de la vida (published in 1913), and commented on the agrarian question.

On July 4, 1913, he again related his progress with Del sentimiento trágica de la vida and noted a new volume of poems in preparation. Moore was interested in Portuguese literature, and Unamuno suggested a list of authors and works for his reading. Among the authors were several about whom Unamuno stated opinions:

Joaquin Pedro Oliveira Martine, João de Deus, and Camillo Castello Branco. He also recommended a history and anthology by Joaquin Mendes dos Remedios as an excellent guide to Portuguese literature.

An autographed envelope came with one of the letters.

*Benjamin Burges Moore was an architect in New York City. In retirement he lived at La Carrière, St. Jean-Cap Serrat, France. An obituary of him appeared in the New York Times, Nov. 24, 1934, p. 16.

Ruth Elizabeth (Newton) Underwood lived in Nashville, Tennessee, and Kobe, Japan, before her marriage to Emory Marvin Underwood in 1905. They had two children, Newton and Florence M. In 1931 Mr. Underwood became the judge of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia.

This collection contains material relating to the Southern Conference on Women and Children in Industry. This organization was formed in October, 1930, in Atlanta, Georgia, and Mrs. Underwood was named chairman of the group. In 1931 there were 28 regional, state, and local organizations affiliated with the Council, which had as its purpose the establishment of uniform minimum standards regulating the employment of women and children in industry. The records include a report, resolution, minutes, letters, financial papers, and a leaflet on the group. Both Thomas Watt Gregory and George Foster Peabody wrote letters expressing approval of the Council. Letters of June 15 and 19, 1931,

Underwood, Ruth Elizabeth (Newton) 2

Union Manufacturing Company. Papers, 1848
(1848-1868) 1931. Randleman, Randolph Co.,
North Carolina.

---

The Union Manufacturing Company conducted a variety of milling operations during 1848-1868 that included a cotton mill, a linseed oil mill, a cotton gin, carding machines, a flour mill, a saw mill, and possibly other enterprises. Its history is recorded in the Minute Book, 1848-1868, from the meetings of the stockholders. The minutes provide considerable information about the business, which is also occasionally related to general economic conditions.

Union Manufacturing Company

Financial statistics were reported regularly.

The company was organized in 1848 and located at Dicks' Mills, now Randleman, on the Deep River. James Dicks had a mill at the site, and he became one of the directors. The other original officers were: Samuel Hill, president; Joseph Newlin, secretary; William Clark, Jesse Walker, Joseph Newlin, and William Hinshaw, directors. In 1868 the mills were sold to George W. Simpson and J. B. Randleman, and the Randleman Manufacturing Company was incorporated in 1869. Other corporate changes occurred during the following century, and the current textile mill in the town is the Randleman Plant of Cone Mills Corporation which presumably occupies the same site. The corporate changes may be traced in Davison's Textile Blue Book and Moody's Industrial Annual. The Union Manufacturing Company is noted in J. A. Blair, Reminiscences of Randolph County (Greensboro, 1890), pp. 36-37, and its successor appears in Branson's North Carolina Business Directory. A map of the plant in 1888 is printed in Trinity College and Mills of Randolph, Guilford, Montgomery,

Union Manufacturing Company 4
and Davidson Counties, N. C. (New York, 1889) - volume filed on ~~SS-46~~. E Pam ff#127

A clipping that was found within the volume is a biographical sketch in 1931 of Samuel Hill (1857-1931), lawyer and business executive who was a grandson of Samuel Hill, the company's first president.

1 vol. added, 12-5-67. Daybook A records the financial transactions of the Union Manufacturing Company during the first fourteen months of its operations - July, 1848 to Sept., 1849. The capital investments appear on pages 2-7.

The entries in the daybook primarily record the sale of mercantile goods. These entries apparently explain the references to a store in the financial reports and minutes. The latter records indicate that the textile mill was not yet in operation during the period of Daybook A, and store transactions predominate in it. However, the entries for the capital stock and other items and services make the daybook a general book or original entry rather than just a book for the store. The pages are labeled "Union Factory" rather than "Union Factory Store." However, an exact definition of the place of this volume within the company's bookkeeping system must await examination of a complete set of the early account books, especially the ledger.

The papers of the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipefitting Industry of the United States and Canada, Local Union No. 102 (AFL) consist of correspondence, printed material, and volumes. The bulk of the correspondence spans the years, 1944-1948, there being only a few earlier items. A few items in 1917 concern a convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, and there is one letter in 1927. The correspondence is primarily that of E. P. Reiche in his capacity as secretary of Local 102 at least from 1943 to 1948.

Many of the letters to Reiche are handwritten communications from union members concerning routine union matters, dues, withdrawal of members, or requests for clearance cards. Other topics that appear are employment, labor conventions, and labor legislation.

A small section of printed material is composed of two

The volumes are four Minute Books: 1916-1918, 1918-1920, 1925-1927, and 1927-1930. All of the books contain a roll call of officers, and some of them include a

This collection consists of a microfilm copy of a Minute Book of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local Union No. 384 (AFL). The volume covers the period from the organization of the carpenters and joiners' local in the hall of the Knights of Labor in Asheville on Apr. 16, 1888, to Jan. 12, 1891. The problem that concerned this union most during that time was how to get the working day shortened from ten to nine hours. The union also concerned itself with sickness benefits for its members, aid to three members who had lost their tools in a fire, expulsion of one of the members for embezzlement, cooperation with the Knights of Labor and the Printers' Union in staging a Labor Day celebration in Asheville in 1890 as well as with the Knights of Labor and the Farmers' Alliance in having receptions and picnics, and Thanksgiving offerings to the Mission Hospital in Asheville and to the Thomasville (N.C.) orphanage.

A report made to the union on Oct. 27, 1890 tells how

Prior to 1976 the Congress of the United States created the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration to plan and aid in the observance of the 200th anniversary of the United States. John W. Warner was appointed administrator.

Since American writers have created a heritage of great literature the ARBA resolved to publish the 100 greatest masterpieces of American literature as a fitting tribute to the nation's development. Questionnaires were sent to the leading universities in all 50 states and the United States territories asking for nominations of works which should be included. An advisory board of authorities headed by Carlos Baker of Princeton then chose from these nominations the 100 titles to be printed. The advisory board included in addition to Professor Baker: John Barth of Johns Hopkins; Nina Baym, University of Illinois; James Dickey, University of South Carolina; Ralph Ellison, New York University; Robert Stuart Fitzgerald, Harvard University; John Christian Gerber, University of Iowa; Willie Lee Rose, John Hopkins University; Monroe Kirk Spears, Rice University; original papers are in the National Archives. The Jay B. Hubbell Center also has a copy of each volume published. These volumes were deeded to the Center by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration before its dissolution.

The papers are arranged alphabetically by the university submitting the list and by name of members of the advisory board. The correspondence and brochures are in a folder at the front of the collection. The volumes are fully cataloged with cards in the Perkins public catalog. They are located on special shelves in the Hubbell Center office.

U. S. Army. Papers. V. p.

This collection consists of miscellaneous U.S. Army papers not fitting into any other category. Of interest are: letter of 1810 from Edmund P. Gaines, transmitting his recruiting account to the Paymaster of the Army, Robert Brent; letter of 1813 of M. Arbuckle, ordering the movement of a boat to New Orleans and referring to dueling pistols and the movement of the 3rd Regiment of Infantry against the Creek Indians; letter of Persifor Smith to Zachary

U. S. Army

Taylor, April 18, 1838, concerning the Seminole Indian War; letter from Josiah Gorgas, May 31, 1847, relative to the need for money; letter of April 23, 1857, concerning pay accounts at Fort Davis, Texas, the routine life, Indian raids, Robert E. Lee, and the health of Mrs. Lee; letter of Jan. 13, 1861, to commander at Fort Pickens, Fla., urging prevention of a seizure of forts in Pensacola Harbor; letter of James R. Doolittle to Gen. C. S. Hamilton, Oct. 14, 1861, concerning a place on Doolittle's staff for Rood's son; letter of Gen. W. A. Gorman regarding sutlers' wine; report of Dec. 24, 1862, on the role of the 56th Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers in the Battle of Fredericksburg; letter of Gen. Michler to Gen. Humphreys concerning a claim in relation to the Washington Aqueduct; statement of seizure of the steamer Louisville; various passes and safe conduct certificates; letter of 1895 about the reunion of the Third Army Corps; certificate of service of a member of the 1st Regiment, Alabama and Tennessee Independent Vidette Cavalry Volunteers; a roster of Company E, 5th Ohio Regiment of Cavalry; and 117 U.S. Army letterheads and envelopes dating from the Civil War period.

1 item added, 4-29-58: Sketch map of the battle fought at Fort Butler, Donaldsonville, La., in June, 1863. It was drawn by a member of the 16th New Hampshire Volunteers.

1 item added, 5-10-58: Memorandum of expenditures at Fort Brooke, Tampa Bay, Florida, 1839.

1 item added, 7-20-59: A report of May 28, 1943, of recent action against the enemy by units of the 67th Coast Artillery (anti-aircraft) Regiment. The report states the dates and places the anti-aircraft units fired upon German planes, the amounts of ammunition expended, the observed hits, the wounds inflicted upon U. S. troops (Purple Hearts awarded to the wounded), etc. One German plane, a Me109G, was recovered in good condition and was said to be the first of its type to be recovered in the North African Theatre of Operations.

2 items added, 2-12-60: Two maps of the U.S. and C. S. fortifications at Petersburg, Va., ca. 1864 or 1865. They show the northeast section of the lines immediately adjacent to the north and south banks of the Appomattox River. Reasonably accurate and relatively detailed, they show fortifications and geographical features, but no troop dispositions, except for picket lines and rifle pits. One map is by A. Schram, apparently a German; the other is anonymous.

2 items added, 2-28-61: Maps from the report of Major General J. G. Foster to the Committee on the Conduct of the War, showing:

(1) the route pursued in the advance to Goldsboro, N. C., in Dec., 1862; and (2) the position of the attacking and defending forces at the Siege of Washington, N. C., March 29 to April 16, 1863.

1 item added, 7-11-61: A roster of Company

E, 115th New York State Volunteers compiled in March, 1865, by Peter J. Keck while he was convalescing at Wilmington, N. C.

1 item added, 1-7-65: Poem composed by B.W. Dugan for the 13th Pennsylvania Cavalry at Fayetteville, N. C. It was to be sung to the tune of "Hoist up the Flag." It is in the form of a broadside printed at Philadelphia in July, 1865.

35 items added, .8-27-68: Depositions and bail bonds of Confederate sympathizers. In the majority of cases, the accused were said to have stolen horses, food, or clothing from a Union man, or to have made unreasonable statements against the Federal government, refused to serve in the army, committed some traitorous deed, or some such act of a similar nature. This information indicates the divided condition of Virginia at this time.

Also included are three oaths of allegiance which, like the above items, have been transferred from their former status as individual collections to this miscellaneous grouping of papers.

U. S. Army

10 items added, 10-6-69: Miscellaneous papers of the U. S. Army, 1800-1945. Among the more notable items are reports of the sick and wounded of the 123rd and 160th Regiments of Ohio Volunteer Infantry (1864) and a copy of a citation by which General Glen Oscar Barcus awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross to Thomas A. McClees, ca. 1945.

that extreme militarists might do anything if they got control of the government.

The other item is an interesting and informative personal letter of Nov. 25, 1918, from an unnamed U. S. Air Corps Capt. to his daughter Elizabeth. Writing from Headquarters, 2nd Air Depot, A. E. F., in France, he discussed commodity prices and his travels in France. Also noted were the inferiority of Army food to French cooking, troop movements to the U. S. and discharges, the ease of obtaining the plentiful Croix de Guerre and Iron Crosses, the artist Otho Cushing, the adoption of French orphans by American squadrons, German reparations, Army pay and promotions, war souvenirs, and an American Negro soldier.

The captain saw war damage at Reims, Verdun, and other places. American troops had crossed some level fields two or three miles wide and taken German-defended hills at great cost.

Foch, he declared, was correct in saying that he had used American troops as the point of his Union soldiers killed in the Civil War, and an undated memoir of battles fought near Chattanooga. The memoir also contains a humorous poem entitled "Charge of the Mule Brigade."

1 item added, 1-7-65: Letter of Aug. 30, 1864, from a prisoner at the Confederate Military Prison at Charleston, S. C., to a friend. He spoke in general terms of his lot as a prisoner.

1 item added, 7-7-66: A letter written on Dec. 6, 1862, by Ezra B. Mitteson of Michigan.

Miscellany

Writing from his barracks in Detroit, he told his family of his idleness and the problems delaying the payment of his salary.

1 item added, 7-8-66: A letter written by a Union soldier on Feb. 1, 1863, from his camp near Falmouth, Va. The writer, Homer Johnson [?], discussed the poor weather conditions, the problems of shipping packages from Conn. to his camp, his personal finances, and the possibility of resuming conscription in Conn.

U. S. Army. Officers' and Soldiers'

1 item added, 8-24-66: A letter, dated Oct. 17, 1862, from G. W. Brown who served as a chaplain in the U. S. Army. Brown discussed the requirements for the position of chaplain, his activities in the regiment, and the battles waged against the southern troops under Braxton Bragg.

1 item added, 12-20-66: Envelope addressed to John Dawson of Uniontown, Pa.; it is stamped "Port Royal, S. C., Sep. 8." The envelope also bears the emblem of the 85th Regiment of of the 25th Michigan Infantry Regiment wrote to a cousin and expressed optimism about the outcome of the Civil War (Feb. 20, 1863). James P. [?] Alden wrote a letter dated May 30, 1863, to enclose a photograph of himself for a friend. Alden was a soldier in the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry. Money loaned to men of the 4th Maine Regiment is the subject of a letter of June 27, 1864, written by George L. French of Bangor.

27 items added, 10-4-69: Correspondence of U. S. Army men, principally during the Civil War. Although the letters are mainly personal in content, there are significant references to conditions in Maryland, Kentucky, and Georgia and to Catholic Church properties in the Philippine Islands during their occupation by the U. S. Army in 1903. A letter concerning the 10th Regiment of Ohio Volunteer Cavalry was removed from the papers of the 9th Maine Volunteer Infantry and cataloged as a part of this addition.

Miscellany

24

1 item added, 11-13-69 (transferred from the Revolutionary War Papers): An anonymous, undated letter addressed to the officers of the Continental Army concerning an order issued presumably by George Washington.

1 item added, 12-8-70: A letter from John H. Doolittle, a captain in the Twentieth Connecticut Volunteer Infantry Regiment, Company B. Writing to his wife on July 28, 1864, he discussed the movements of his regiment during the Atlanta Campaign.

Miscellany

1 item added, 12-15-70: A letter to Thomas Stephens, colonel commanding the 2nd Wisconsin Cavalry Regiment, from Captain M.W. Wood of Company C of this regiment (September 13, 1863). Wood described a skirmish with Confederate troops in Mississippi.

2 items added, 9-4-72: Two letters to James Monroe, Jr., an officer in the Army from 1837 to 1855. David Dawson Mitchell, Superintendent of

Miscellany

Indian Affairs, wrote on August 28, 1849, concerning a military escort for a shipment of supplies to Kansas. The second letter, dated May 12 1851, was written by an officer complaining of harsh treatment accorded him for an infraction of Army regulations.

3 items added, 12-11-72: Letters written by U.S. Army officers in 1862 and 1863. The two letters in December, 1862, were written to Win-gate Hays in Providence, Rhode Island, con-commissioned on October 19, 1862, but as a result of illness had to resign on May 13, 1863. These letters are in reply to King's letter of resignation.

19 items added, 1-23-73: Miscellaneous letters from 1841 through 1899. The letter of Jan. 22, 1841, was written by Lt. Samuel Woods of the 6th Infantry to Capt. John Monroe of the 4th Artillery, concerning finding a man named Brown.

There are several letters which were written during the Civil War. Hugh T. Boylan, a private in the New York Volunteers, wrote four letters to his brothers and sisters in 1862 and 1863. He spoke of fraternizing with a South Carolina regiment, picket duty, and lazy Negroes. Other letters in 1863 include one on March 13 from Joseph Leavitt, in Company G of the 5th Maine Regiment, to his father and another on June 1 from James Sanks Brisbin to his wife. Brisbin, who at the time was a captain in the 6th Cavalry, but eventually became a major general of volunteers, wrote concerning the disapproval of his application for leave. A letter of Feb. 6, 1864, described the Civil War along the coast of North Carolina, particularly around New Bern and Morehead City. Another letter in February, on the 11th, to General Truman Seymour was written by General Quincy Adams Gillmore, Commander of the Department of the South and of the X Corps. Gillmore wrote that he could not send as many troupes as reinforcements to Seymour as he had requested. It is interesting that Seymour was subsequently defeated at the Battle of Olustee on Feb. 20.

The correspondence in the 1860's includes two letters in 1866 to Brevet Colonel Charles Hale Morgan, who eventually became a brigadier general of volunteers. On April 3, Captain

Miscellany

Henry James wrote giving a history of his military career. David Stuart wrote on May 2 attesting to the high qualities exhibited by James as an officer in the Quartermaster's Department. William Babcock Hazen, who had been a Union general, wrote to General Adam Badeau on Dec. 31, 1867, to disagree with the account of the Chattanooga campaign in Badeau's book, possibly the Military History of Ulysses S. Grant. In particular Hazen took issue with conclusions about Generals Sherman and Thomas at Missionary Ridge, and he also mentioned Brown's Ferry, Generals Bragg and Grant, and Sheridan's and Wood's Divisions. On Nov. 23, 1869, John Gross Barnard, the engineer, commented on the Battle of Bull Run. He noted that, "... it was one of the few battles of the war which was thoroughly planned and fought after a plan...."

Miscellany

A letter of Dec. 25, 1878, from Henry Warner Slocum, the Army officer and congressman, was written to G. N. Galloway, probably the George Norton Galloway who wrote, The Ninety-fifth Pennsylvania Volunteers.... Slocum wrote that his report on the battle at Gaines's Mill is on file in the War Department; the 95th Pennsylvania Regiment participated in that battle. Slocum enclosed a copy of an engraving of himself with the letter. In a letter of Dec. 21, 1899, Wesley Merritt accepted membership in the Flag Association. The final item is an undated document entitled, "Principal Claims of Maj. Gen. E. O. Keyes for restoration." In the summer of 1863, Keyes had been part of a force directed toward Richmond; he felt it was unfair to blame him for the failure of his part in the expedition without a trial or hearing.

Miscellany

Miscellany

1 item added, 3-6-73: An unsigned circular, probably written in 1862, from the Office of the Commissary General of Subsistence. The document relates to settling accounts of Disbursing Officers.

1 item added, 7-29-82: Letter that appears to be that of Charles B. Allim that was written from camp on the Big Black River in Mississippi on Mar. 7, 1864, to a former unnamed professor. The writer had returned as a member of the large force that General William T. Sherman had sent on Feb. 3, 1864, from Vicksburg to operate to Meridian and back across the state. The two corps commanders of the expedition were Gens. Stephen Augustus Hurlbut and James Birdseye McPherson. Their wagon train was many miles long, and among the objectives of the trip was the destruction of sections of the Mobile and Ohio and the Mississippi Central railroads and rolling stock of the railroads. In this they "succeeded most admirably" as well as in burning thousands of buildings, only those housing women and children being spared. Meridian was found to be a flourishing town with government buildings that included a creditable arsenal, new hospitals, and a warehouse filled with grain. Except for the residences the town was destroyed. On the return trip food was scarcer, so there was much foraging. If the town of Canton was not spared from massive destruction, this letter does not contain that fact. The writer described it as a beautiful town and the only one in the state he had seen in which he would be willing to live. There he met a former teacher of his in Aurora, possibly Illinois, and accepted her invitation to dinner although her husband was a private in the Confederate Army. According to this letter, Sherman's forces marched through Mississippi with a sword in one hand and a torch in the other in an attempt to make it impossible for the "Rebel Government to sustain even a very small army" in that state.

Miscellany

U. S. Army. Fifth Military District. Papers.
New Orleans, Orleans Parish, La.

---

The volume in this collection is the official letter book of the U. S. Army headquarters for the Fifth Military District at New Orleans. Its letters were written principally by the commanding generals of the district and by their secretaries for civil affairs. The correspondence concerns the administration of Louisiana and Texas during Reconstruction.

Philip Henry Sheridan was in command of the district when the letter book was begun on

U. S. Army. Fifth Military District

2

March 22, 1867. The letters written before his removal in September of that year reveal very little of the harsh treatment with which Sheridan's administration was charged and which caused his reassignment to Missouri. These letters were dictated by Sheridan or by George Alexander Forsyth, his secretary for civil affairs and later his aide-de-camp. Forsyth signed several copies of letters dictated by Sheridan. It appears, therefore, that he was at times too hasty in affixing his signature to some of the letters in this letter book.

Charles Griffin assumed temporary command of the district until Winfield Scott Hancock arrived to succeed Sheridan. His administration lasted from September 5th until his death on the 15th of that month. Joseph Anthony Mower succeeded Griffin and remained in command until Hancock took over on November 29, 1867. The letters written during Mower's and Hancock's administrations are more revealing. Hancock indicated his distaste for Mower's strict policies and expressed his preference for leniency and flexibility in dealing with the defeated southerners. W. T. Gentry served as secretary for civil affairs under both Mower and Hancock, and his name appears frequently as the signature of the letters in this volume.

The letters are for the most part routine in nature and concern such subjects as voter registration, the procurement of supplies, and appointments to minor posts in local governments. They deal principally with Louisiana, and the references to affairs in Texas are scattered and minor.

The one item contained in the collection had been inserted in the volume and has now been placed in an envelope attached to the inside of the back cover. It is a letter dated September 13, 1867, from Harry Thompson Hays to W. T. Gentry concerning the disposition of city funds in New Orleans.

U.S. Army. Corps of Engineers. Survey of the Columbia River, 1891. Washington, D.C.

In 1890 Congress appropriated funds for the surveying and improvement of the Columbia River in Washington state, including $10,000 for surveying the river from the international boundary line southward to Rock Island Rapids. In 1891 the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers made this survey as far south as the Okanogan River. William Cuthbert led the team that made the survey. His superior was Capt. Thomas W. Symons of the U.S. Engineer office at Portland, Oregon. Their reports upon the 1891 survey were published as part of the annual report in 1893 of the Chief of Engineers, U.S. Army, which is in the Report of the Secretary of War... (Washington, 1893), Vol. II, Pt. 4, pp. 3381-3399. Copies of the reports by Symons and Cuthbert are filed in the Information Folder of this collection.

Two albums contain 74 photographs (7 1/4 x 9 in.), albumen prints, from the survey of 1891. These photographs are numbered, and their numbers and content correspond to those of photographs listed in Capt. Symons' report. Sixteen of the pictures are duplicated, so there are actually 57 different scenes. The scenes are along the Columbia River in Ferry and Stevens counties in northeastern Washington from the Canadian border southward 88 miles to Elbow Bend 17 miles north of the mouth of the Spokane River. Capt. Symons wrote that "a large number of photographs was taken of the river and its vicinity," and he sent with his report a set "of those which most clearly illustrate the river, especially at the bad places." Most of the photographs in these albums are views of parts of the river where there were problems for navigation. The photographs are of the following areas: the Canadian boundary, Murphy's Rapid, Sheep Creek Bend, Onion Creek, Little Dalles, Marble Mountain, Nine-mile Rapids, rapid above Marcus, Big Bend above Marcus, mouth of Kettle River, Kettle Falls, Grand Rapids, Rock Islands, Gifford's Rapid, Turtle Rapid, and Elbow Bend. A complete listing of the photographs in each album is filed in the Information Folder. The large number of photographs from the survey of 1891 included scenes further down the river as far as the mouth of the Okanogan River and perhaps others from the stretch of the Columbia River represented by the photographs in these two albums.

The photographs were made from glass plate negatives. They were numbered, but the numbers are not always visible on the prints in the albums. The numbers written in ink on the corners of the mounting boards in Album II are the photograph numbers. They should not be confused with later numbers written with a pencil which are merely page numbers. The numbers written with a blue pencil on the boards in Album I are the photograph numbers.

Two maps of the river contain numbers of the photographs indicating the positions of the scenes. Copies of these maps are also in the Information Folder.

The photographs show the usual deterioration, but many of them retain rich brown tones. Among the 16 scenes for which there are two prints, in many cases one print is in better condition than its duplicate. These photographs are mostly scenery devoid of people and buildings, but there are a few exceptions, notably the structures at Little Dalles, Indian Ferry nearby, and on Hayes Island at Kettle Falls. The latter is only a distant view, but there are fine pictures of the tiny settlements at Little Dalles and Indian Ferry (Nos. 18, 20, 25).

The name of the photographer is not in the albums, and it was not given in the reports by Symons and Cuthbert. However, Cuthbert's report in 1892 (Annual Report of the Chief of Engineers,

U.S. Army. Corps of Engineers

7a

United States Army, to the Secretary of War, for the Year 1892, Part I) identifies the photographers as O. C. Yocum and a Mr. Warren. It was Warren who took the photographs above the Spokane River including all of those in these two albums. Warren made 71 photographs.

The albums probably belonged to the photographer or to someone on the survey, because there are notations on the reverse of the last board in Album II that strongly suggest that relationship. There is a list of numbers with the following notation: "The following negatives to be duplicated so that original one can be sent to Chicago." This reference is to the Chicago World's Fair of 1893 to which 104 photographs were sent for exhibition. The manuscript notation in Album II includes the words "4 Silver prints and 1 blue print" indicating what type of prints were intended for the Fair.

U.S. Army. Corps of Engineers

7b

The National Archives has a set of 40 photographic prints from this survey, the captions reading from "Rocks at International Boundary Line" through "Birdseye View of Stillwater Bay" mile 206-210. These photographs were enclosures in File 2540 of May 11, 1893, in the Old Army and Navy Archives Branch. No information was found in this file about the identity of the photographer. The staff of the Federal Archives and Records Center at Seattle was unable to locate records relating to the survey in their holdings of Seattle District and Portland District Corps of Engineer records. Those records are poorly described, however, so the results of their search which could not be thorough, do not preclude the presence of information. Correpondence about these matters is filed in the Information Folder.

Most of the river depicted in these views is now part of Franklin D. Roosevelt Lake created by the construction of Grand Coulee Dam. These photographs are rare views of the river in its pristine condition in the 19th Century.

William D. Layman of Wenatchee, Wash., has identified the photographer of these pictures as George R. Warren of Grayville, Illinois. Layman's letter of June 9, 1987, and copies of this article and of surveyor William Cuthbert's field notes are filed in the Information Folder.

In 1999 Mr. Layman reported that the National Archives now has glass plate negatives of these photographs.

Volunteers, Company E. Papers. V. p.

This order book of Company E, 11th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry covers the life and fighting of this company from Jan., 1862 to April, 1864. This record of general and special orders reveals the life of the regiment while in the division of General Joseph Hooker and later of General Daniel Sickles. Army regulations, courts-martial, discipline and other aspects of military life

U. S. Army. 11th Massachusetts Infantry

during the Civil War in Maryland and Virginia concern these orders. This regiment, enlisted for three years, was serving in the Potomac River blockade at Camp Baker, Budd's Ferry, Maryland, opposite Quantico Creek, in January, 1862. This order book does not contain data on their part in the Battle of First Bull Run. By January 1, 1862, Colonel William Blaisdell was in command. The order book at this time lists many courts-martial as the regiment was on routine pickett duty. General Henry Morris Naglee was in command of the First Brigade in the Third Corps under General Samuel Peter Heitzelman. By April 28, 1862, the regiment is at Camp Winfield Scott at Arlington, va., with orders issued by General Cuvier Grover.

The 11th Massachusetts was sent into the Peninsular Campaign in May and June, 1862, orders being issued by Colonel Blaisdell and Generals Grover and Heitzelman, but Colonel Blaisdell, probably wounded, is temporarily replaced by Lt. Col. Tileston and then Major Porter Tripp. The regiment is in the Battle of Williamsburg, at New Kent Court House, at Poplar Hill, and at Fair Oaks. They are pulled back to Harrison's Landing by July, 1862.

At this point, a break in the book occurs, so that no orders for the Battle of Second Bull Run are recorded. Col. Blaisdell has returned by Sept. 1, 1862, when the 11th Massachusetts is at Fort Lyons, Va. By October, they are serving in Sickles Division under Gen. Joseph Bradford Carr. The orders continue to reflect disciplinary problems. At this time, a number of orders come from Generals McClellan and Sherman and Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton. Gen. Daniel Sickles issued a proclamation on Nov. 23, 1862, upon the death of Gen. Francis Engle Patterson. The routine orders continue from Generals Ambrose E. Burnside, George Stoneman, George Gordon Meade, Marsena R. Patrick, Hiram Gregory Berry, and Andrew A. Humphreys. There are no details for the Battle of Gettysburg, when the 11th Massachusetts fought under Gen. Humphreys in the 2nd Division of Sickles's Third Corps. Lt. Col. Porter Tripp was again in command. There is little of importance after 1863, probably because the three-year enlistment term ran out in 1864.

The cards for these schedules, both manuscript and microfilm, are interfiled by year and then alphabetically within each year.

The following cards contain information about the manuscript schedules, 1850-1884, 134 vols. (Vol. nos. 2400-2525 & SS-97), for which the discarded title card was dated June 6, 1940. Negative microfilm copies are available for all of the original schedules except for Colorado. The two manuscript schedules for Arizona (Deaths, 9th & 10th censuses, 1870 & 1880) were returned to their source as noted on their cards, and no microfilm copy is available here.

These schedules are the original returns compiled by the census enumerator. They include ~~population~~, deaths, agriculture, manufacturing, and social statistics. The 7th (1850); 8th (1860); 9th (1870); 10th (1880) censuses are included, while the states covered are Colorado, District of Columbia, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Tennessee, and

U.S. Bureau of the Census. Census Schedules 3

Consequently the investigator should examine the cards showing each schedule (filed back of this) which give inclusive counties, to learn whether the particular material he wants may be available.

These volumes were transferred from the headquarters of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington. For further information about this transferral see the letters

United States. Congress. House of Representatives. Committee of Elections. Journal, 1789-1828. Washington, District of Columbia.

This collection consists of one MS. volume of 533 pages containing the Journal of the Committee of Elections of the U.S. House of Representatives from April 13, 1789 to January 14, 1828, together with an inadequate index on pages 510-530.

The American State Papers, in the Document Section of this library, has most or all of this material published in scattered form

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
BUT, while the meaning is the same the language is often different from that in this volume.

An index to the names of all the U. S. Representatives and all other important people mentioned in the volume has been placed at the end of the volume.

Abbreviations used in this sketch include:

B.D.A.C. - Biographical Directory of the American Congress (1950 ed.)

H. of R. - House of Representatives.

C. of E. - Committee of Elections. On p. 107 of this volume the C. of E. is called t

3

United States Congress. House . Com. of Elections.

"The Committee of Privileges and Elections."

The C. of E. was a standing (permanent) committee, not a special (temporary) committee. It was appointed and instructed by the H. of R. The C. of E. ~~S~~ Journal contains some material from the Journal of the House of Representatives of the U. S.: ordinarily the members of the C. of E. are listed at the beginning of each session of Congress; and some instructions to the Congress; and some instructions to the committee are quoted or cited. e. g., pp. 1, 11, 27, 63, 67, 135, 155, 169, and 252.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Art. I, Sec. 5, Par. 5 of the U. S. Constitution provides that "Each House [of Congress] shall be the judge of the elections returns and qualification of its own members..."

Little, if anything, in the vol. indicates any friction within the C. of E. Reports by it ~~and motions~~ <sup>on the</sup> floor of the House for adoption of its resolutions were generally made by its chairman, about the only other committee mentioned is the committee of the

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections whole House, which ordinarily voted on the resolutions proposed by the C. of E.

The most active member of the C. of E. may perhaps have been William Findley (1741 or 1742-1821), of Pa., who was sometimes its chairman.

The Journal of the C. of E. is valuable chiefly for the information given about contested elections to the House data collected by the committee sometimes discusses political irregularities at the Grass Roots, the states

cities, counties, and territories. The interpretation of state election laws was sometimes dwelt upon learnedly and lengthily, but at other times these laws were dismissed as inapplicable.

Broadly speaking, the C. of E. took the position that the results of a Congressional election, certified to be correct, by the gov. of a state or territory, could not be set aside save upon presentation of the most substantial evidence. Hence, in a number of instances the men challenging a seated member made serious charges and submitted letters and affidavits purporting to prove them. Charges included the following:

1. State, territorial, and local election officials were not sworn in, were improperly sworn in or, were sworn in too late.

2. The officials acted improperly, did not have the polls opened and closed at the prescribed times, did not count the votes properly, and failed to file returns on time, if at all.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

3. Troops in the U. S. Army and the state militias voted when they were not supposed to and prevented civilians from voting against the candidates of the military.

4. The voters--and sometimes the opposing candidates--did not meet the residence requirements for voting--or office holding. Some did not live in the Congressional District. Some had not lived there long enough.

5. The voters were minors, Indians, non-property owners, or absent from the polls.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

6. State laws about the ballots (secret or non secret and the written, printed, or oral) were violated.

7. The elections were interfered with by rains, floods, hurricanes, and British invasions (war of 1812).

8. The voters intended (or less often, did not intend) for their votes to go to a person of a similar name. (There are difficulties about spellings, the use of "Sr." and "Jr.", and the initial "I", which on p. 313 is said

to stand for names beginning with "I." and "J."

Sometimes the elections lasted two or three days. In some of the later election controversies references were made to earlier elections investigated by the C. of E. and even to cases involving the seating of members of the British House of Commons. In many contested elections it appears that the C. of E. did not have enough facts to recommend appropriate action to the House of Representatives. One surmises that the House itself

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
did not add many facts to those presented to it.

While this Journal is not a day-to-day report, it does in the main, list events chronologically. It covers not only contested elections, but resignations, deaths, and seats given to those chosen in special elections. Sometimes when a representative died, the House passed a resolution for the speaker to notify the gov. of that representative's state, so that a special election could be called to fill the vacancy.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

All in all, the book gives the impression that many members were elected by fraud, died in office, resigned, or were defeated for re-election. The turnover for each biennium was about one-third.

This collection contains letters and statements by various persons in and out of the H<sup>1</sup> of R., including James Monroe, John Quincy Adams, and William H. Crawford.

In all instances where the spellings of proper names in the ms vol. disagree with

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections with those in the B.D.A.C. the latter have been adopted for this sketch and for the accompanying indexes. But "Sr.," "J.," and "III" have been added to some names.

Subjects discussed include politics and government in the U. S. and in the states and territories; the U. S. Constitution; Congressional Elections; alleged crimes; legal papers; lawyers; election officials; and U.S. representatives.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

The Journal is incomplete in some respects. See, for instance, the note on p. 115 (Feb. 28, 1800). Now begins a general review of the book.

On Apr 15, 1789, in the First Congress, the S. C. physician, historian, and plagiarist, Dr. David Ramsay (1749-1815), unsuccessfully contests the election of William Loughton Smith (1758-1812) to the U. S. House of Representatives. This is the first contested election to that August Assembly (pp. 1-6). The H. of R. instituting a practice to be followed throughout the vol., referred the matter to the C. of E., which conducted an investigation. Ramsay charged that Smith was ineligible, under the provisions of the U. S. Constitution which required seven years as a U. S. citizen. On May 22 the House voted 36 to one in favor of the seated member Smith.

Pp. 6-11 are concerned with a letter and sundry petitions maintaining that the four U. S. Representatives from N. J. were not legally elected. After an investigation by the C. of E., the House resolved on Sept. 2 that the four were duly elected.

Pp. 11-14 deal with the resignation of Wm Pinkney (1764-1822), of Md., and the succession to his vacated seat of John Francis Mercer (1759-1821). It is stated on that the latter's service began Feb. 6, 1792. The B.D.A.C. says the 5th. Discrepancies of this type are rather common.

An election dispute between Gen. Anthony Wayne (1745-1796), of Ga. and James Jackson (1757-1806) occupies--pp. 14-26. Deciding in favor of neither, the House declared the seat vacant. Judge Henry Osborne, of Ga., is discussed on p. 20.

P. 26 deals with the resignation of Joshua Seney (1756-1798), of Md., and his replacement by William Hindman (1743-1822).

Delaware provides the next contested election (pp. 27-39). It is between John Patten (1746-1800), The incumbent representative, and Henry Latimer (1752-1819), the challenger. The House decided in favor of installing the latter and the former was removed from his seat.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

George Read, Jr. (1733-1798), Richard Bassett (1745-1815), and Gunning Bedford, Sr. (1742-1797) or Gunning Bedford, Jr. (1747-1812) are mentioned. On p. 29 a peculiar Del. election law is discussed. Each voter, in choosing a U. S. Representative, had to vote for two men, at least one of whom should be from a county other than the voter's own.

Gen. Henry Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, of N. Y., unsuccessfully contests the election of Nohn Evert Van Alen (1749-1807) (pp. 40-43).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections.

Pp. 43-63 discuss in detail Col. Abram Twigg's (1750-18 ) unsuccessfully contesting the election of Francis Preston Smith (1765-1836), of Va. The problems of voting by U.S.

Army and Va. Militia soldiers are discussed at length. U. S. Army Capt. William Preston, brother of F. S. Preston, is accused of interfering with the election. Sometime members of the Va. Gen. Assembly include: James Barnett, James Charlton, Hiram Craig, James Craig, Daniel Howe, Robert Kent, Byrd Smith, Christian

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
Snidow (or Snyder?), and James Taylor. The spelling of names used here is that used in E. G. Swem and J. W. Williams, A Register of the Gen. Assembly of Va. 1776-1918 (1918), although the spelling in the C. of E's Journal at times is different.

An entry for May 31, 1794 (p6363), states that Gabriel Duvall (1752-1844), of Md., was selected to succeed John Francis Mercer (1759-1821).

The entries of Jan. 1 and 2, 1795 (pp.65-67),

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
discuss the resignation of representative Uriah Forrest (1756-1805), of Md., and his replacement by Benjamin Edwards (1753-1829).

The entries for Dec. 10, 1795-Jan. 18, 1796
(pp. 68-74) show the action taken on a memorial by James Morris (17__-ca, 1795), of Pa., to unseat representative John Richards (1753-1822).
The C. of E. studied the question of the reporting of army votes and stated that Morris had been elected, but that since he had later died, his seat was declared vacant. Later the C. of E. declared in favor of Richards and so did

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
the H. of R. p. 74 says that Richards took his seat on Jan. 1st, 1796, but the B.D.A.C., p.
1735, says that his service began on Mar. 4, 1795.

The unsuccessful complaint of Burwell Bassett (1764-1841) against the election of rep.
John Clopton (1756-1816). of Va., occupies pp.
74-76 (Dec. 10, 1795-Jan. 20, 1796).

Pp. 76-83 (Dec. 8, 1795-May 31, 1796) deal with the ill-fated attempt of Matthew Lyon (1746-1822), of Vt. (later of Ky.) to unseat representative Israel Smith (1759-1810)

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

On pp. 84-85 (Dec. 17, 1795-Mar. 18, 1796) consideration is given to the petition of sundry citizens of Pa. against the election of representative John Swanwick (1740-1798). The H. of R. concludes that he is entitled to his seat.

The election of Joseph Bradley Varnum (1750-1821) is unsuccessfully challenged by sundry citizens of Mass. (pp. 85-90 and 104; Feb. 25, 1796-Jan. 26, 1797).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

The case of David Bard (1744-1815), of Pa., is considered on pp. 91-92 (Mar. 9, 1796), and he is found to be entitled to his seat.

Pp. 93-94 deal with the resignation of representative Gabriel Duval (1752-1844), of Md., and his succession by Richard Sprigg, Jr.

Andrew Jackson (1767-1845) was admitted as a representative from Tenn. (pp. 94 and 97).

William Craik (1760-before 1814) replaces Jeremiah Crabb (1760-1800) as representative from Md. (pp. 94-95 and 97-98).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

James Davenport (1758-1797) succeeds James Hillhouse (1754-1832, of Conn. (pp. 95 and 98).

George Ege (1748-1829) replaces Daniel Hiester (1747-1804), of Pa. (pp. 95-97).

William Francis Strudwick (17__-1812), of N. C., takes the seat of Absalom Tatom (1742-1802), (pp. 96 and 98).

Samuel Sewall (1757-1814), of Mass., replaces Benjamin Goodhue (1748-1814), (pp. 96 and 98).

Elisha Reynolds Potter, Sr. (1764-1835), representative from R. I., is succeeded by Benjamin Bourn (1775-1808), (p.99).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Samuel Whittlesey Dana (1760-1830), of Conn., replaces Uriah Tracy (1755-1807), (pp.100-101).

Robert Rutherford (1728-1803), of Va., unsuccessfully contests the election of Gen. Daniel Morgan (1736-1802), (pp. 105-110). He alleges that many unlawful votes were cast by people outside the congressional district; that the Gen. or his friends, gave money for food, drink, wagon, hire, and so on. Persons mentioned on p. 106 include six sometime members of the Va. Gen. Assembly: Elisha Boyd, Hugh Holmes, William Lemon, Robert Page

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
(1765-1840), (U. S. representative from Va. from 1799 to 1801), Joseph Swearingen, and Andrew Waggoner.

Jonathan Brace (1754-1837), of Conn., succeeds Joshua Coit (1758-1798), (pp. 110-111).

P. 111 says that Joseph Eggleston (1754-1811) of Va., replaces William Branch Giles (1762-1830), resigned.

Richard Dobbs Spaight, Sr. (1758-1802), of
N. C., succeeds Nathan Bryan (1748-1798),
(p. 111).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Robert Wain (1765-1836), of Pa., replaces John Swanwick (1740-1798), (p. 111).

Robert Brown (1744-1823), of Pa., succeeds Samuel Sitgreaves (1764-1827), resigned (p.112).

On Dec. 9, 1799 the H. of R. directs the C. of E. to investigate the credentials of William Henry Harrison (1773-1841), who had appeared as a delegate from the Territory N.W.<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> of the Ohio River. A week later the House agrees to let him have his seat (pp.113-114).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections.

John Smith (1752-1816), of N. Y., replaces Jonathan Nicoll Havens (1757-1799), (pp. 114-115).

P. 116 has more changes in H. of R. personnel:

a. William McMillan (1764-1804), del. from the Territory N.W. of the Ohio River, replaces William Henry Harrison (1773-1841), resigned. McMillan was said to have the right to debate, but not to vote, in the House.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

b. Nathan Read (1759-1849), of Mass. succeeds Samuel Sewall (1757-1814), resigned.

c. John Cotton Smith (1765-1845), of Conn., replaces Jonathan Brace (1754-1837), resigned.

d. Littleton Waller Tazewell (1774-1860), of Va., replaces John Marshall (1755-1835), resigned.

Samuel Tenney (1748-1816), of N. H. replaces William Gordon (1763-1802), resigned (p.117).

Ebenezer Mattoon (1755-1843), of Mass., replaces Samuel Lyman (1749-1802), resigned (pp. 117-118).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

John Stewart (17__-1820), of Pa., succeeds Thomas Hartley (1748-1800), (p. 118).

Levi Lincoln, Sr. (1749-1820), of Mass., takes the seat of Dwight Foster (1757-1823), resigned (p. 118).

Narsworthy Hunter (17__-1802), after some investigation and voting, is admitted as a delegate from the Territory of Miss. (pp. 121-125). It was voted 77 to eight by the House on Dec. 21, 1801 that the Territory was entitled to a delegate. On p. 128 are listed five personnel changes:

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

a. Samuel Hunt (1765-1807), of N. H., succeeds Joseph Peirce, who resigned in 1802.

b. Thomas Marston Greene (1758-1813), delegate from the Territory of Miss., replaces Narsworthy Hunter, in 1802.

c. David Meriwether (1755-1822), of Ga., replaces Benjamin Taliaferro (1750-1821), who resigned in 1802.

d. Samuel Thatcher (1776-1872), of Mass., occupies the seat of Silas Lee (1760-1814), who resigned in 1801.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

e. Thomas Wynns (1764-1825), of N. C., succeeds Charles Johnson (17__-1802).

Richard Winn (1750-1818), of S. C., replaces Thomas Sumter (1734-1832), resigned (p. 132).

Peter Early (1773-1817), of Ga., succeeds John Milledge, Jr. (1757-1818), resigned (p. 132).

On Jan. 31, 1803 (pp. 132-133), the C. of E. resolves that Paul Fearing (1762-1822) is entitled to his seat as the delegate from the Territory N.W. of the Ohio River.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

There is a contest over the election of Thomas Jefferson's son-in-law, Thomas Mann Randolph (1768-1828), of Va., but he is allowed to take his seat (pp. 136-137 and 152-153).

In 1803-1804 (pp. 136-147), there is a protracted election dispute between Andrew Moore (1752-1821) and Thomas Lewis, both of Va. It appears that a number of persons ineligible to vote had favored Lewis. The H. of R. finally voted to oust Lewis and seat Moore.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Duncan McFarlan (17__-1816), of N. C., unsuccessfully contests the election of Samuel Dinsmore Purviance (1774-ca. 1806), (pp. 147-151 and 157).

Representative John Smith (1752-1816), of N. Y., resigns from the H. of R. to take a seat in the Senate. The House seat is declared vacant (p. 153).

Daniel Hiester, Sr. (1747-1804), of Md., dies and his seat is declared vacant on Mar. 8, 1804 (p. 154).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Four more personnel changes are on p. 156.

a. Christopher Henderson Clark (1767-1828), of Va., replaces John Johns Trigg (1748-1804).

B. Simon Larned (1753-1817), of Mass., succeeds Thompson Joseph Skinner (1752-1809), who resigned in 1804.

c. Roger Nelson (1759-1815), of Md., takes the seat of Daniel Hiester, Sr. (1747-1804).

d. Samuel Riker (1743-1823), of N. Y., replaces John Smith (1752-1816), of N. Y.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Samuel Latham Mitchell (1764-1831), of N.Y., resigns his seat in the House in 1804 to enter the Senate (pp. 158-159).

John Hoge (1760-1824), of Pa., succeeds William Hoge (1762-1814) in 1804 (pp. 158-159). The former's election is unsuccessfully contested (pp. 159-160 and 161-165).

Alexander Wilson (17__-18__), of Va., replaces Andrew Moore (1752-1821), who resigned to enter the Senate (pp. 160 and 165-166).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

George Clinton, Jr. (1771-1809), of N. Y., succeeds Samuel Latham Mitchell (1764-1831), who resigned to take his seat in the Senate (pp. 167-168).

Thomas Spalding (1774-1851), of Ga., successfully contests the election of Cowles Mead (1776-1844), (pp. 169-176). It was alleged that a hurricane prevented the transmission of some of the votes within the legally prescribed time limit.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

The election of Michael Leib (1760-1822), of Pa., is unsuccessfully contested in Jan., 1806 (pp. 177-178).

William Armistead Burwell (1780-1821), of Va., succeeds Christopher Henderson Clark (1767-1828), who resigned in 1806 (p. 179).

Daniel Clark (ca. 1766-1813), in 1806, becomes the delegate from the Territory of Orleans (p. 179).

p. 179 lists replacements for three representatives who resigned in 1806:

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

a. Theodore Dwight (1764-1846), of Conn., in lieu of John Cotton Smith (1765-1845).

b. Edward Lloyd, Jr. (1779-1834), of Md., in lieu of Joseph Hopper Nicholson (1770-1817).

c. John Porter, of Pa., in lieu of Michael Leib (1760-1822).

The C. of E. was particularly busy during the Tenth Congress (1807-1809), (pp. 180-256).

In 1807, Joshua Barney (1759-1818), later Capt. in the U. S. Navy, unsuccessfully contested the election of representative Wm.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

McCreery (1750-1814) of Md. (pp. 181-208). The C. of E. hears detailed testimony about the issue of the incumbent's place of residence.

The Republican (now Democratic) Party, whose candidate Barney is, is mentioned on p. 195.

In the same year Duncan McFarlan, of N. C., successfully challenges the election of John Culpepper is reelected in a special election (pp. 208-217). Benjamin H. Covington is mentioned on p. 212.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections.

Perhaps the most interesting of all the controverted elections taken up in this vol. is that of Philip Barton Key (1757-1815), a prominent Md. lawyer, judge, agriculturist, and legislator, who is incidentally, an uncle of Francis Scott Key. His troubles included the fact that he had served in the British Army during the American Revolutionary war, and that he did not resign his British Army half-pay until about 1806. There were also problems about his places of residence and law practice.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Some anti-Key petitions are presented to the H. of R. on Nov. 4, 1807. On Mar. 18, 1808, the House votes to permit Key to retain his seat (pp. 218-249).

Key's problems involved the late U. S. Army Gen. Uriah Forrest (1756-1805), who had previously (1793-1794) served as U. S. Representative from Md. The two men had been very close, had married sisters, and had lived adjoining each other. The Gen., who had received Key's half-pay from 1794 till 1805, became bankrupt in 1802.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Among those testifying were Mrs. Rebecca (Platter) Forrest, the Gen.'s widow; his nephew, Richard Forrest; Gabriel Duvall (1752-1844), and Patrick Magruder (1768-1819).

Magruder, who had been Key's opponent, discusses the campaign in the Third Congressional District of Md. (pp. 239-241). He had then charged that Key in 1777 was reading law in Annapolis, the capital of Md., when Admiral Richard Howe (1726-1799), later First Earle

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections.

Howe, appeared with his fleet in Chesapeake Bay. Gov. Thomas Johnson (1732-1819) of Md. issued a proclamation of warning to all the people of Annapolis and its environs to come in and take the oath of allegiance to the State. Key vainly asked Johnson to relax the proclamation, in so far as it related to him, so that he could retire to the country on a farm of his uncle, who had already deserted to the British. Key left Md. and joined the British, who were then occupying Philadelphia,

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
remained in their service for the duration of the war, and returned to the U. S. as a British pensioner.

Thomas Jefferson and James Madison are spok spoken of as Magruder's friends. James Monroe is mentioned.

A Fredericktown, Md., newspaper editor, John B. Colvin, testifies (pp. 238-239) that during the Magruder-Key campaign he had attacked Key for being a veteran of the British Army and that Key had admitted the

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
charge in the presence of a crowd which included Magruder.

On Oct. 24, 1807, Key writes to the British Ambassador to the U. S. , David Montagu Erskine (1776-1855), afterwards Second Baron Erskine, repeating his resignation of his British half-pay (p. 242).

Persons mentioned in the controversy include Robert Merry (1755-1798).

Henry Southard (1747-1842), of N. J., on J
Jan. 28, 1808, announces the death of Ezra

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Darby (1768-1808). Adam Boyd (1746-1835) succeeds him (p. 250).

David Thomas (1762-1831), of N. Y., resigns and is replaced by Nathan Wilson (1759-1834), (pp. 250-251).

Thomas Gholson, Jr. (17__-1816), of Va., replaces John Claiborne (1777-1808), (p. 253).

Samuel Shaw (1768-1827), of Vt., succeeds John Witherell (1759-1838), who resigned in 1808 (p. 253).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Benjamin Say (1756-1813), of Pa., succeeds Joseph Clay (1769-1811), who resigned in 1808 (pp. 253-254).

Richard Jackson, Jr. (1764-1838), of R.I., succeeds Nehemiah Knight (1746-1808), (p. 254).

Benjamin Parke (1777-1835), delegate from the Territory of Indiana, is replaced by Jesse Burgess Thomas (1777-1853), (pp. 254-255).

Jacob Crowinshield (1770-1808), of Mass., dies (p. 251), and is succeeded by Joseph Story (1779-1845), (p. 255).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Col. Charles Turner, Jr. (1760-1839), of Mass., successfully contest the election of William Baylies (1776-1865), (pp. 257-286).

Thomas Randolph, of the Territory of Indiana, unsuccessfully challenges the election of Jonathan Jennings (1784-1834) as a delegate (pp. 287-297).

Wilson Cary Nicholas (1761-1820), of Va., resigns and is succeeded by David Shepherd Garland (1769-1841), (p. 297).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Three replacements are recorded on p. 298:

- a. Joseph Allen (1749-1827), of Mass., in lieu of Jabez Upham (1764-1811).
  - b. Abijah Bigelow (1775-1860), of Mass., in lieu of William Stedman (1765-1831).
  - c. Ebenezer Huntington (1754-1834), of Conn., in lieu of Samuel Whittlesey Dana (1760-1830).
- Six replacements are listed on p. 299:
- a. William Taylor Barry (1784-1854), of Ky., in lieu of Benjamin Howard (1760-1814).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

b. Langdon Cheves (1776-1857), of S. C., in lieu of Robert Marion.

c. William McKinley of Va., in lieu of John George Jackson (1777-1825).

d. Samuel Ringgold (1770-1829), of Md., in lieu of Roger Nelson (1759-1815).

e. John Anderson Scudder (1759-1836), of N. J., in lieu of James Cox (1753-1810).

f. Robert Wright (1752-1826), of Md., in lieu of John Brown.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

John Taliaferro, Jr. (1768-1852), of Va., successfully contests the election of John Pratt Hungerford (pp. 301-309). Later Taliaferro unsuccessfully contests Hungerford's election (pp. 311-319 and 341-343).

Burwell Bassett (1764-1841), of Va., unsuccessfully contests the election of Thomas Monteagle Bayly (1775-1834), (pp. 319-326 and 344-348). The War of 1812 obliquely enters this controversy (p. 321): British cruisers allegedly interrupted the usual intercourse

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections
between the different parts of the Congressional District during the election.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections is declared vacant by the House, not awarded to the former (pp. 365-383).

John Tyler (1790-1862), of Va., was made a member of the C. of E. on Dec. 3, 1817 and of the H. of R. on Dec. 16 or 17, 1817 (p. 384).

In Dec. 1817 the House investigates the Representatives who had held office in the Federal Executive Dept. since "ar. 4. The U.S.
Constitution, Art. II, Sec. 6, Par. 2, states that "...no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either

House [of Congress] during his continuance in office." On the 10th the H. of R. adopted a resolution requesting President James Monroe to state which of the representatives named in a list annexed to the resolution had held office under him since his inauguration, and to give related information. The President replied on the 29th, enclosing a report of the 24th by Secretary of State John Quincy Adams showing that ten had held office (pp/385-388).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

The election of Samuel Herfick (1779-1852), of Ohio, is unsuccessfully contested by an Ohio citizen (pp. 389-412).

U. S. Postmaster Gen. Return Jonathan Meigs, Jr. (1764-1824) has statements of Dec. 30 and 31, 1817, about a representative holding an office in the postal service (pp. 413-414).

On Jan. 31, 1818, U. S. Secretary of the Treasury William H. Crawford reports to John W. Taylor, chairman of the C. of E. on the service of George Mumford (d. 1818), representative from N. C., in the Treasury Dept.,

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Rollin Carolas Mallary (1784-1831), of Vt., successfully contests the election of Orsamus Cook Merrill (1775-1865), a member of the C.
of E. (pp. 423-439).

James Guyon, Jr. (1778-1846), of N. Y., successfully contests the election of Ebenezer
Sage (1755-1834), (pp. 440-441).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Gen. Philip Reed (1760-1829), of Md., upsets the election of Jeremiah Cosden (1768-1824), (pp. 445-452).

Cadwallader David Colden (1769-1834), of N. Y., successfully challenges the election of Peter Sharpe (pp. 453-455).

Matthew Lyon (1746-1822), of the Territory of Ark. (formerly of Ky., and earlier of Vt.), unsuccessfully challenges the election of James Woodson Bates (178<sup>o</sup>-1846) as a delegate in 1821 (pp. 455-456).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Parmenio Adams (1776-1832), of N. Y., upsets the election of Isaac Wilson (1780-1848), (pp. 459-462).

John Biddle (1792-1859), of the Territory of Mich., unsuccessfully contests the election of Gabriel Richard (1767-1832), (pp. 462-466). A native of France and a Roman Catholic Priest, Father Gabriel served one term (1823-1825) as a delegate.

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

John Bailey (1786-1835), of Mass., is declared not entitled to his seat. Charles Bulfinch (1763-1844) and John Quincy Adams testify in this connection (pp. 467-480 and 484-485).

The C. of E. investigates the right of John Forsyth (1780-1841), of Ga., to a seat in the H. of R. and confirms him in it. Some information is supplied by John Quincy Adams and the Spanish Secretary of the Dispatch Don Evaristo San Miguel (pp. 480-483).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

Alfred H. Powell (1781-1831), of Va., unsuccessfully contests the election of Jared Williams (1766-1831), (p. 484).

Daniel Hugunin, Jr. (1790-1850), of N. Y., upsets the election of Egbert Ten Eyck (1779-1844), (pp. 486-489).

A controversy about the delegate from the Territory of Mich. resulted in the seating of Austin Eli Wing (1792-1849), (pp. 490 and 491-506).

United States Congress. House. Com. of Elections

The C. of E. discusses a special election in the Second Congressional District of Pa. between Henry Horn (1786-1862) and John Sergeant (1779-1852) and decides in favor of the latter (pp. 507-508).

These items refer to the enforcement of the abandoned property act of the U. S. Government. This meant the confiscation of land and property within Federal lines, often without regard to the cause of the Confederate owner's absence. The few pieces offer an interesting sidelight on one of the less known aspects of the Civil War.

The item comprising this collection is a lengthy report of ordnance and ordnance stores received at Morris Island, S. C., on January 1, 1864.

4 items added, 10-6-69: Letters from men serving in the Ordnance Office in Washington and two miscellaneous items. The first letter, written to George Augustus Waggaman, U. S. Senator from Louisiana, concerns arms for the militia of that state (January 12, 1832).

The second was written by Alexander Brydie Dyer, Chief of Ordnance, to William Buel Franklin on, February 19, 1871. This letter is marked personal and contains candid comments on Charles Sumner, the sale of weapons to France, and the continued manufacture of arms by the U. S. government.

The two miscellaneous items are dated 1862 and concern the disposition of ordnance stores.

U.S. Embassy (Spain). Dispatches, 1792-1825

These twenty-six reels contain Volumes 1-24 of U.S. diplomatic dispatches from Spain. The first reel has an introduction (6 pp.) to the whole series. This introduction has detailed explanations that should be consulted before using this material. Each reel also has a brief introduction. General indices for the dispatches from 1793 to 1870 are found in the first reel.

The U.S. ministers who served in Spain from 1793 to 1825 were (dates of first and last letters sent from Spain are included):

William Short, joint commissioner with William Carmichael, chargé d'affaires, to negotiate

U.S. Embassy (Spain). Dispatches, 1792-1825 2

a treaty; appointed Minister Resident in June, 1794 (Feb. 3, 1793-Oct. 30, 1795);

Thomas Pinckney, Envoy Extraordinary (July 21-Oct. 28, 1795);

David Humphreys, Minister Plenipotentiary (Aug. 15, 1797-Dec. 28, 1801);

Charles Pinckney, Minister Plenipotentiary (Sept. 14, 1801-Sept. 28, 1805);

James Monroe, Minister Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary, jointly with Charles Pinckney, to negotiate a treaty (Jan. 19-May 25, 1805);

James Bowdoin, Minister Plenipotentiary (June 18-July 8, 1805);

U.S. Embassy (Spain). Dispatches, 1792-1825 3

George W. Erving, chargé d'affaires ad interim
(Oct. 25, 1805-March 7, 1810);

Anthony Morris, special agent (Oct. 29, 1813-March 4, 1816);

Thomas L. L. Brent, chargé d'affaires ad interim
(June 10, 1815-July 5, 1816);

George W. Erving, Minister Plenipotentiary (Aug.
29, 1816-May 1, 1819);

John Forsyth, Minister Plenipotentiary (Apr. 18, 1819-March 3, 1823);

Thomas L. L. Brent, chargé d'affaires ad interim
(Jan. 15-Aug. 14, 1821);

John James Appleton, chargé d'affaires ad interim (March 20-Nov. 6, 1823);

U.S. Embassy (Spain). Dispatches, 1792-1825

Hugh Nelson, Minister Plenipotentiary (Nov. 7, 1823-July 13, 1825).

Thomas Pinckney was engaged in an extraordinary mission while Short continued to serve as Minister Resident, and Brent, as Secretary of Legation, served as chargé d'affaires during an absence of Forsyth in 1821. Between October, 1795 and August, 1797, the affairs of the legation were conducted from Lisbon by Humphreys, who served concurrently as Minister Resident to Portugal. Between 1810 and 1813 no diplomatic representative was maintained by the U.S. in Spain.

Reels 9-10 also contain correspondence (1804-

U.S. Embassy (Spain). Dispatches, 1792-1825 5

1805) between John Armstrong, Minister Plenipotentiary to France, and the ministers in Spain. William Short's dispatches (108-122) while envoy to the Netherlands (Aug. 15-Dec. 18, 1792) are on Reel No. Two.

Each reel of microfilm is summarized below from information that is found in the introduction to each reel. This summary, however, is merely a guide and does not include all the information from these introductions. It should also be noted that the enclosures with these dispatches contain an assortment of documents that are not listed here.

U.S. Embassy (Spain).    Dispatches, 1885-1889

These dispatches and other communications are from three U.S. Envoys to Spain--John Watson Foster, Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary; Jabez Lamar Monroe Curry, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary; and Edward Henry Strobel, Secretary of Legation and Chargé d'Affaires ad interim. This material dates from Aug. 18, 1885, to Feb. 13, 1889. Most of the items are from Madrid, but a few are from San Ildefonso, Spain (Foster's dispatches 389-400), and from Richmond, Virginia (Curry's first dispatch and also his communications of Sept. 10 and Oct. 1, 1887).

U. S. Navy. Papers. V. p.

This is a miscellaneous group of papers pertaining to the U. S. Navy, containing letters, orders, receipts, and lists.

A letter of Aug. 8, 1821, from J. Hambleton, concerns pay for the crew of the Columbus, with a note of approval by William Bainbridge; letter of 1835 to Lt. Frank Ellery is about personal business; anonymous document of 1836 gives an account of service of S. Phillips Lee and mentions promotion problems in the Navy; letter of 1838 describes the Black Hawk purchase; certificate of a seaman of the U.S.S. Brandywine, 1846; order for a surgeon to report to Franklin Buchanan on the U.S.S. Susquehannah, 1853; letter of 1857 to Attorney General J. S. Black concerns a grant of land at Annapolis to the U. S.; letter of Nov. 16, 1863, to Gideon Welles is about a promotion; report of an incident on the U.S.S. Fort Hindman, Dec. 28, 1863; note of 1864 from Commandant George U. Morris of the U. S. Gunboat Port Royal, in which he declined an invitation of Mrs. Mary I. (Palmer) Banks because he was engaged in shelling Fort Powell; pay voucher of Charles Drummond of the U.S.S. Young America; list of prizes captured by the U.S. Navy since the start of the Civil War; Court-martial Order No. 22 by William E. Chandler for Lt. Field of the U.S.S. Swatara for drunkenness, 1884; a receipt for beef for the U.S.S. Mississippi.

3 items added, 4-29-58: Letter of Dec. 8, 1828 from the U.S.S. Delaware, referring to life aboard, describing the U.S.S. Lexington; letter of March 4, 1862, on board the U.S.S. Augusta, on blockading duty off Charleston, S. C., describing the squadron there and the H. M. S. Rinaldo; and an undated letter from the U.S.S. Virginia describing briefly a cruise in the Caribbean.

2 items added, 5-16-58: Receipts for supplies for the U.S.S. (Propellor) Ironsides and the steamer Diamond State.

1 item added, 3-1-66: A letter from

U. S. Navy

Brabston's Place, Mississippi [?], Sept. 16, 1863, to Acting Volunteer Lt. Joseph P. Couthony of the U.S.S. Osage was written by J. C. Barrow to protest against depredations committed on Aug. 30, 1863, at his plantation by officers and men from the U.S.S. Volunteer. This ship was a transport used for foraging of corn. Often depredations seem to have been committed by this boat, which was seized on Nov. 25, 1863, while at the plantation "Mary," for violating naval regulations in the matter of what was taken by its crew. Cotton was found aboard at that time. Couthony of the Osage was evidently also in command of the Volunteer and its crew. The story of these ships and their men at this time is to found in the Official Records of the Union and Confederate Navies in the War of the Rebellion, I, 25 and II, 1. Couthony died of wounds received in action on April 4, 1864.

3 items added, 6-25-68: Order issued on May 25, 1865, at Tallahassee for a boat to be furnished to Pilot Crane to enable him to look at the obstructions and stake out a channel in some river, possibly the Mississippi, since this order was in the Military Division of the Mississippi, and two letters concerning appointments for A. L. Churchill.

5 items added, 10-7-69: Miscellaneous items pertaining to the U. S. Navy. A fragment of a letter dated December 5, 1818, contains comments on merchant vessels and trade with Peru. An order issued by Admiral Frederic Brewster Bassett concerns the length of sailors' hair. An undated poem is written in honor of the U. S. S. Cumberland which was sunk during the Civil War.

In a long letter written to his brother on April 16, 1863, Admiral Joseph Adams Smith discussed the activities of the U. S. S. Kearsarge during its pursuit of the C. S. S. Alabama. Smith noted that the Kearsarge was far more thorough in performing its duties than the Tuscarora which seemed to be making a pleasure cruise out of the operation to find and sink the controversial Confederate ship. Smith wrote during a call in the Azores and included a description of the islands and their inhabitants in his letter.

1 item added, 9-7-72: A letter to Harriet R. Stapleton from William Thomas Sampson who wrote on April 4, 1900, to grant his permission for the use of his name as a supporter of the Betsy Ross Flag Association.

The General Grant was under the command of Joseph Watson during the time this volume was kept (July 21-Dec. 4, 1864), and it plied the Tennessee River from Bridgeport to Decatur, Ala. The officers and crew are listed. References are made to the other Federal gunboats they encountered along the river; repairs on the General Grant, punishment of crewmen for misconduct and attempts to desert; putting a deserter from the Union Army in irons; landing some cavalrymen at French's Landing and Whitesburgh; transporting of a lieutenant and thirty soldiers on Sept. 28 from Decatur to Whitesburgh and also foraging on that day; landing of troops at Guntersville on Sept. 29 to look for Rebels and shelling the town; taking the marines and soldiers, along with fresh meat, back on board on Sept. 30 (one marine reported missing as a deserter) and taking on more soldiers farther down the river on the same day; transporting a woman who wanted to go north for some distance; taking on board at Larkin's Landing on Oct. 17 a southern deserter who said he was from Cheatham's Division; destruction of several pontoon boats by the General Grant on Oct. 18; taking on board on Oct. 23 of fifty men of the Home Guard who constituted a scouting party; firing on some Rebels along the river on Nov. 18 and taking aboard the next day refugees and a deserter from Wheeler's command; capturing Confederate troops on Nov. 22 at Fort Deposit.

A number of times foraging is mentioned.

The volume closes on Dec. 4 at Theron's Ferry.

The location and movements of a number of ships on the Tennessee River are mentioned during August to December, 1864. They are the Bridgeport, Chickamauga, General Burnside, General Sherman, General Thomas, Lookout, Missionary, Paint Rock, Resacca, and Stone River.

The quarterly reports of Arthur Smith, the postmaster, date from 1804 to 1845 when he was succeeded in office by K. Hill. These "Accounts Current with the Post Office Department" give the financial statistics for the Suffolk post office for forty-one years. The quarterly reports are not complete; there are 101 for the forty-one years in which there were 164 quarters.

The quarterly reports are supplemented by eighty-two receipts and orders to pay, 1806-1845, for transactions with the office at Washington, D. C. Receipts from the 1830's and 1840's are for the amounts due Washington as shown on the quarterly reports. Smith was authorized to pay sums to various individuals, at least one of whom identified himself as a contractor. All of these persons may have been mail contractors.

United Steelworkers of America, District 35.
Papers. Atlanta, Fulton Co., Ga.

This collection consists of the correspondence of two officials of the United Steelworkers of America, District 35, William Harrison Crawford and R. E. Starnes. Crawford (1888- ) was born in Brush Fork, Ohio, the son of William Henry and Hanna Elizabeth Crawford. Crawford married for the second time in 1943, and had five children. His labor union activities include being President of Trumbull

2

Lodge No. 73, a member of Robert Williams Lodge No. 78, and President of Trumbull County Central Labor Union. Later he became an organizer and President of First Steelworkers Union in Birmingham, Alabama. Employed by the United Steelworkers of America as Director of District 35 from at least 1942 to 1946, Crawford has been a member of Local Union No. 2401 of the United Steelworkers of America as well as the United Mine Workers of America. He has served as a member of the executive board of three agencies:

United Steelworkers of America, District 35
the Veterans Advisory Committee, the Atlanta Community Chest, and the Atlanta Urban League.

The other official with District 35 of the United Steelworkers of America was R. E. Starnes (1915- ). The son of James Cordy and Anna Robertta (Cornett) Starnes, he was born in Atlanta. His wife was Viola Edwards, whom he married in 1945, and they have one child.
Starnes was the labor representative for several agencies including the War Labor Board and the Office of Price Administration. He also served

United Steelworkers of America, District 35 4
as a member of the Speakers Committee of the Red Cross. His labor union career included terms as vice-president both of the Georgia Industrial Union Council and the Atlanta Industrial Union Council. Starnes joined Local Union
No. 2401 in 1940, and held various positions within the union. In 1942, he was President of this local, which was a part of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee through May, 1942.
In ca. June of that year, the local became affiliated with the United Steelworkers of America,

United Steelworkers of America, District 35

5

which was the successor to the organizing committee. From ca. May, 1943 to ca. May, 1946, Starnes served as Field Representative in District 35 of the United Steelworkers of America. Why We Join the CIO is one of the works he authored. For further biographical information on both Starnes and Crawford, please consult Who's Who in Labor (New York: The Dryden Press, 1946).

The majority of the collection covers the years 1942 to 1946, during which Crawford and

6

Starnes were employed by the United Steelworkers of America. Folders of Starnes letters contain correspondence from February to December, 1942. Communications to, and some from, such Georgia Congressmen as Richard B. Russell, Robert Ramspeck, and Walter F. George, are included. There are letters to Governor Eugene Talmadge and President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Union leaders Philip Murray and Noel R. Beddow, Executive Director of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, wrote a few letters. Many of the letters in these folders concern gaining support for labor unions, while others pertain to grievances, labor legislation, the Atlantic Steel Company, and Local Union No. 2401 business. A few letters by Lee Pressman, General Counsel of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (C.I.O.), are in a folder under his name.

United Steelworkers of America, District 35

The folders in this collection are organized basically in a subject arrangement, with the topics filed alphabetically. Only the labor unions, organizations, topics, and persons for which there is a large amount of material, as well as a representative sampling of some others to indicate the scope of the collection, will be mentioned in this sketch.

A section of Correspondence, Printed Material, etc., covers the period, 1941-1952. The letters of both Starnes and Crawford appear in these folders, as well as pamphlets and Local Union No. 2401 correspondence. There are agreements for Local Union No. 2401, which represented the employees of Atlantic Steel

United Steelworkers of America, District 35

Company in Atlanta, and Local Union No. 2948 at Columbus Iron Works in Columbus, Georgia. Material also relates to these companies.

Atlantic Steel Company operates steel mills and open hearth furnaces, as well as producing hot rolled products. The folder for this company contains correspondence about contracts with Local 2401, and information about a dispute between the company and the union which came before the National War Labor Board.

There are folders for the Atlanta Industrial

United Steelworkers of America, District 35

Union Council and the Georgia State Industrial Union Council. As previously mentioned, Starnes had been vice-president of both of these organizations, and in addition he was Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Atlanta Industrial Union Council. Included in the folders are correspondence, a resolution, and a questionnaire.

Folders exist for the National Labor Relations Board, the Regional War Labor Board in Atlanta, and the National War Labor Board.

United Steelworkers of America, District 35 11

Starnes was ■ labor panel member of the National War Labor Board, Regional Office, Disputes Division, and the folders for that agency contain primarily press releases.

Other miscellaneous material includes a folder for the Office of Price Administration as well as one entitled, "Instructions, Pittsburgh, Pa.," which is mainly mimeographed memoranda from the United Steelworkers of America. A volume consists of specimen examples of job descriptions and classifications.

Since this collection has not been cataloged in detail, the entries made for the Autograph File may be incomplete, and only general subject entries have been made. Correspondence usually was indexed when there was a whole folder of correspondence for a person or a significant number of letters for a person throughout the collection.

United Textile Workers of America, Local Union No. 2598.
Papers. Enka, Buncombe Co., N.C.

This collection consists of the correspondence and papers of the United Textile Workers of America, Local Union No. 2598 (AFL). The union was formerly Textile Workers Union No. 22129 (AFL), but sometime in 1941, the name was changed. Officers of the union are the major correspondents: L. James Johnson, Representative of the American Federation of Labor and Organizer of Textile Workers Union No. 22129; and Nick Collins, President and later Business Manager of Local 2598. There also are letters of James F. Barrett, Director of Publicity for the AFL, headquartered in Atlanta.

In the papers is material relating to a case before the National Labor Relations Board in which the union brought charges against American Enka Corporation. One charge, filed in 1941, concerned the company's alleged efforts to break a strike. The correspondence of Oct. 27 and Nov. 14, 1940, between Barrett and W. M. Daniels, Jr., Chairman of the Colored High School Guidance Committee in Washington, N.C. is interesting. Daniels posed the question, "If Negroes will have more opportunity for employment in industry in the future as a result of the growth of labor organization in the South?" Barrett gave a lengthy, detailed reply, telling how he and the AFL have been involved in aiding persons regardless of race.

United Textile Workers of America, Local Union No. 2598

UNTHANK, J	H	Bonds.	1858.
Memphis, Tennessee.		Sketch.	7 pieces

---

J. H. Unthank was a lawyer of Memphis. These seven items are somewhat enigmatical, but from internal evidence it seems that Unthank borrowed $10,000 from H. W. Davis. Unthank then issued one hundred $100 bonds covering the loan, and secured by 520 acres of delta land across the river in Arkansas. The bonds are complete with coupons, each good for the payment of $3 interest semiannually, and each coupon was signed by Unthank. The purpose of the loan is nowhere indicated. It was to be repaid at the end of five years, and all payments of principle and interest were to be made at the Branch of the Planter's Bank of Tennessee at Memphis.

Upton, Emory. Papers. Auburn, Cayuga Co., N. Y.

Emory Upton (1839-1881) was born in Batavia, N. Y. He attended Oberlin College and was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy. He pursued a military career, serving as a general in the U. S. Army during the Civil War, commandant of cadets at West Point, and commander of the 4th Artillery and Presidio of San Francisco. He also wrote several books on military tactics and policy.

On November 26, 1865, he wrote to an uniden-

Upton, Sara Carr. Papers. Washington, D. C.

Sara Carr Upton (b. 1843), author, was the daughter of Francis Henry Upton, a noted lawyer of New York City. She was a translator of modern languages in the Post Office Department, a contributor to magazines, and the translator of one or more French books. Among the latter was Jérôme Édouard Récéjac's Essay on the Bases of the Mystic Knowledge . . . Translated by S. C. Upton (1899). Miss Upton is noted in Appletons' Cyclopaedia of American Biography.

Upton, Sara Carr

The collection includes letters, diaries, address books, scrapbooks, pictures, clippings, and notes. The contents are usually routine, but there are a few items worthy of notice. A letter of July 6, 1882, from Italy includes a paragraph about Harriet Waters Preston, American author with whom the writer had traveled. Letters of 1898-1899 from Thomas W. Ward, Charles Scribner's Sons, and their literary adviser, William C. Brownell, concern the publication of Miss Upton's translation of

Récejac's book on mysticism. A writer or editor of the Catholic Times in England wrote on Nov. 16, 1900, about this book and his review. He would have written a special, signed article but feared that it might arouse the ecclesiastical authorities who had strict press laws for Catholic newspapers. He also suggested another work that deserved translation. Two clippings contain reviews.

The small Scrapbook, 1892-1893, was a gift from Hannah Lawrence. On the inside front cover there are two photographs of "Pocaho," the home of John Charles Frémont near Tarrytown, New York: a view of the library and drawing room; and the exterior front of the house with Elizabeth Benton Frémont (Lilly) on horseback. The pictures date perhaps from about 1872. A number of clippings within the volume concern the career of Eleonora Duse, an Italian actress who first appeared at New York in 1893.
